Gail Garnett Busy in Navy

Miler Credits Track for Condition

Gail Garnett flew into town last week from his navalbase at Corpus Christie, Tex., where he is a first class pharmacist's assistant in the hospital corps.

Within a couple of months he'll be upped in rank to a third-class pharmacist.

Gail is holder of the Intercity mile record, which he made as a Tech junior last spring.

At Corpus Christie, Gail has a full 10-hour day. He changes linens, works in the pharmacy division, scrubs operating room floors, and helps doctors with operations.

After that, he finds time for an hour or so of recreation "just to keep in shape."

"Boy, if you don't train, you can't stand the beat," he said, "and most of us train, don't kid yourself."

He has seen quite a bit of these United States since he entered the Naval Reserve at Chicago last year. From Chicago he went to Norfolk, W. Va., where he played on the football team at a guard.

Gail credits much of his training success to Dutch White, his coach at Tech.
